

Find Newspaper Articles

This thesis applied text classification and topic modeling to a dataset of 15,954 news articles from four local newspapers (Richmond Times-Dispatch, Hartford Courant, Lawrence Journal World, and San Jose Mercury News) among five news sections (Business, Education, Entertainment, Life, and Sports) obtained through the newspaper RSS XML feeds. C4.5 decision tree algorithm, k-Nearest Neighbors, and naïve Bayes are three classification algorithms used to predict the news section of each news article. The dataset was partitioned into different segments per newspaper and month. The overarching goal for text classification is to find which classifier is the most accurate and if segmenting the dataset and combining the results achieves greater accuracy when predicting the news section of each news article versus using the entire dataset. Latent Dirichlet Allocation (LDA) and Fuzzy c-Means clustering are two topic modeling techniques used to determine how the news articles group together without knowledge of the news section and to determine if news articles have the potential to belong to multiple news sections. All text classification models are partitioned into 60% training and 40% testing datasets. The most accurate global model was the C4.5 decision tree classifier with a 77.9% accurate rate. Overall, the most accurate model was the Lawrence Journal World newspaper segment decision tree model at 87.8% accuracy. The decision tree most often outperformed the k-Nearest Neighbors and naïve Bayes models among other segments. Segmenting the dataset into individual newspaper segments and combining their results brought about a 7% greater accuracy compared to the best decision tree model used on the whole dataset (84.9% vs. 77.9%). Segmenting the models into monthly time frames and combining the results brought about a 2.1% greater accuracy (80%) compared to the global 60/40 decision tree model. Using separate months for training and testing resulted in slightly higher accuracy rates in all but one instance Topic generated by LDA with $k = 5$ reproduced four out of the five news sections. LDA also discovered subtopics such as University of Connecticut Sports, the Volkswagen emissions scandal, crime, and football within the dataset when $k = 15$. Fuzzy clustering could not match the news articles to multiple topics and it is hypothesized this could be due to the small size of each article. Additional areas for research include weighting terms by a scheme other than term frequency-inverse document frequency, such as grouping terms by various n-grams, and using a different stemming algorithm. Exploring models beyond decision trees, k-nearest neighbors, and naïve Bayes could yield more accurate results. Exploring relationships between newspaper segments and time frames could also provide more insights into the ideal time frame in which to classify news articles.

You don't need to be a professional journalist to write salable articles. Find out why, and how, to approach the field with this essential guide. Learn how to make contacts; find and develop ideas through your hobbies, job, or family; find your target market; format your manuscript; recycle your articles and get more sales out of them. Interviews with the editors of prominent magazines and newspapers are also included, revealing what the experts look for when selecting pieces to publish.

Excerpt from The History of Lincoln County, North Carolina: A Series of Newspaper Articles Published in 1935 in the Lincoln County News In a letter of Governor Tyron of date Dec. 12, 1768, he describes Tryon County as forty-five miles in breadth due north and south and eighty miles due east and west it having been found to be that distance from the Catawba River -to the western frontier line which was run last year between the and this Province. The site for the public buildings was not fixed until 1774. As there was no court house the courts during this time were held at private residences that happened to be convenient and suitable for the purpose. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work. Forgotten Books uses state-of-the-art technology to digitally reconstruct the work, preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy. In rare cases, an imperfection in the original, such as a blemish or missing page, may be replicated in our edition. We do, however, repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully; any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works.

"Charming. . . . A moving testament to the diversity and depths of love." —Publishers Weekly You'll laugh, you'll cry, you'll be swept away—in less time than it takes to read this paragraph. Here are 175 true stories—honest, funny, tender and wise—each as moving as a lyric poem, all told in no more than one hundred words. An electrician lights up a woman's life, a sister longs for her homeless brother, strangers dream of what might have been. Love lost, found and reclaimed. Love that's romantic, familial, platonic and unexpected. Most of all, these stories celebrate love as it exists in real life: a silly remark that leads to a lifetime together, a father who struggles to remember his son, ordinary moments that burn bright.

This book will help you learn how to find ideas and then find supporting evidence to write clearly about those ideas. It contains brainstorming and training activities to sharpen your writing skills. Tips and advice from news writers and examples from their own work will also help you.

"The five volumes of A History of American Magazines constitute a unique cultural history of America, viewed through the pages and pictures of her periodicals from the publication of the first monthly magazine in 1741 through the golden age of magazines in the twentieth century"--Page 4 of cover.

Excerpt from Selections From the Newspaper Articles of Thurlow Weed First Agricultural Fair (chenango County, 1818) My First Salmon (onondaga County, 1810) Onondaga Reminiscences (mickel's Furnace, 1812) About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work. Forgotten Books uses state-of-the-art technology to digitally reconstruct the work, preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy. In rare cases, an imperfection in the original, such as a blemish or missing page, may be replicated in our edition. We do, however, repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully; any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works.

Genealogists and other historical researchers have valued the first two editions of this work, often referred to as the genealogist's bible." The new edition continues that tradition. Intended as a handbook and a guide to selecting, locating, and using appropriate primary and secondary resources, The Source also functions as an instructional tool for novice genealogists and a refresher course for experienced researchers. More than 30 experts in this field--genealogists, historians, librarians, and archivists--prepared the 20 signed chapters, which are well written, easy to read, and include many helpful hints for getting the most out of whatever information is acquired. Each chapter ends with an extensive bibliography and is further enriched by tables, black-and-white illustrations, and examples of documents. Eight appendixes include the expected contact information for groups and institutions that persons studying genealogy and history need to find. ""

The best country-by-country assessment of human rights. The human rights records of more than ninety countries and territories are put into perspective in Human Rights

Watch's signature yearly report. Reflecting extensive investigative work undertaken by Human Rights Watch staff, in close partnership with domestic human rights activists, the annual World Report is an invaluable resource for journalists, diplomats, and citizens, and is a must-read for anyone interested in the fight to protect human rights in every corner of the globe.

Excerpt from Sherill's History of Lincoln County, North Carolina: A Series of Newspaper Articles Published in the Lincoln Times by William L. Sherrill Ibis claimed by affine - that Henry Weidner, (whitener) came from Pennsylvania in 1742, while the Colonial Record states that he came about 1745. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work. Forgotten Books uses state-of-the-art technology to digitally reconstruct the work, preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy. In rare cases, an imperfection in the original, such as a blemish or missing page, may be replicated in our edition. We do, however, repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully; any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works.

First published in 1986, Interpreting Japanese Society became something of a classic in the field. In this newly revised and updated edition, the value of anthropological approaches to help understand an ancient and complex nation is clearly demonstrated. While living and working in Japan the contributors have studied important areas of society. Religion, ritual, leisure, family and social relations are covered as are Japanese preconceptions of time and space - often so different from Western concepts. This new edition of Interpreting Japanese Society shows what an important contribution research in such a rapidly changing industrialised nation can make to the subject of anthropology. It will be welcomed by students and scholars alike who wish to find refreshing new insights on one of the world's most fascinating societies.

Indexes the Times and its supplements.

The New York Times Index Newspapers S&S Learning Materials The Times Index

Excerpt from Some Newspaper Articles Regarding the Educational Situation and Other Civic Matters in the Southern States, Alabama in Particular William H. Skaggs, formerly a prominent citizen of Alabama, but now of Chicago, has written to The age-herald an appalling indictment of the South's educational conditions. That it may be known that there is no sectional prejudice in what Mr. Skaggs writes, it should be stated that he was born and reared in Talladega and was three times mayor of that city before taking up his residence in Chicago. He writes as follows. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work. Forgotten Books uses state-of-the-art technology to digitally reconstruct the work, preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy. In rare cases, an imperfection in the original, such as a blemish or missing page, may be replicated in our edition. We do, however, repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully; any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works.

This guide is an updated version of Mandy Banton's indispensable introduction to the records of British government departments responsible for the administration of colonial affairs, and now held in The National Archives of the United Kingdom. It covers the period from about 1801 to 1966. It has been planned as a user-friendly guide concentrating on the organisation of the records, the information they are likely to provide and how to use the contemporary finding aids. It also provides an outline of the expansion of the British empire during the period and discusses the organisation of colonial governments.

"Fidler and James have edited a guide that characterizes and evaluates, in depth, the leading journals throughout the musical professions. . . . [T]his guide makes a significant contribution to the literature." Choice

Excerpt from The National Capital: Newspaper Articles and Speeches Concerning the City of Washington This recital of grievances would find a beginning in events which occurred previous to the city's birth. While, ordinarily, neither individuals nor municipal corporations can complain of ill-treatment at a time when they had no existence, the capital on the Potomac may perhaps be excused for indulging in a feeble, preliminary wail over the difficulties which it experienced in being born at all. And this privilege should be granted the more readily in view of the fact that many subsequent evils can be traced to their sources in events of the ante-natal period. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work. Forgotten Books uses state-of-the-art technology to digitally reconstruct the work, preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy. In rare cases, an imperfection in the original, such as a blemish or missing page, may be replicated in our edition. We do, however, repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully; any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works.

Excerpt from South American Impressions: Being a Series of Newspaper Articles Jamaica, which lies south of Cuba, in the course of the Ships from New York to Panama, is not so well known to Americans. It belongs to Great Britain and is a most attractive winter resort. 'rising somewhat back from the shore are the beautiful Blue Mountains and the climate and quaintness of the country appeal strongly to the visitor. Odd buildings, good roads, cleanliness, strange customs and dusky faces greet -the newcomer on all sides, and make of. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work. Forgotten Books uses state-of-the-art technology to digitally reconstruct the work, preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy. In rare cases, an imperfection in the original, such as a blemish or missing page, may be replicated in our edition. We do, however, repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully; any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works.

"This rich resource provides a collection of authentic newspaper articles from a variety of British newspapers. The stimulating articles encourage students to contextualise the topic and then engage in lively discussion. The articles cover the following areas: Lifestyle, Moral Issues, Work and Education, Food and Health and World Issues. Vocabulary and comprehension activities accompany each article and these highlight the key language items needed for the ensuing discussion. An answer key is included. The introduction provides suggestions on managing successful discussions, as well as background information on the British press."--Cover.

The purpose of this dissertation was to analyze perceptions of terrorism through the analysis of two newspapers' news coverage of terrorism after the September 11 attacks, a popular Kentucky newspaper, the Courier-Journal and the New York Times (NYT). The social construction of terrorism was reflected as a problem through moral panics or something that a society believed as wrong that needed to be eradicated. Previous research had found that newspapers have contributed to moral panics by exaggerating the scope of social problems such as school shootings. I used the theoretical framework of moral panics; Goode and Ben-Yehuda's (2009) two criteria of moral panics, which were (1) concern and (2) volatility; portrayals of heroes, folk devils, and victims in moral panics; and war on terror as sensitizing concepts to find themes. I analyzed 500 the CJ newspaper articles and 500 the NYT articles from September 11, 2001 to August 30, 2018 to find the differences between both newspapers, identify portrayals, and determine how terrorism was socially constructed. Overall, I found differences between the two newspapers on how they depicted terrorism and themes on how both newspapers reported and described terrorism. The reporting on terrorism has implications to the overall handling of terrorism such as the Muslim Travel Ban.

This book reveals inside information on exactly how to publish and get paid for magazine and newspaper articles. Based on more than 30 years toiling as a freelance writer, with more than 2 million words in print, including four novels, a screenplay, 10 non-fiction books, and thousands of newspaper and magazine articles.

Copyright: eb15267739191ca16a613a860ad9d2ba